Sberbank Capital plans to sell 100 percent of the Dulisma oil field in East Siberia this year and 35.5 percent of the Taas-Yuryakh field, general director Ashot Khachaturyants said Wednesday.

The Dulisma field is valued at $300 million, while 100 percent of the Taas-Yuryakh field is valued between $1.5 billion and $2 billion, Khachaturyants said.

Bashneft has expressed interest in acquiring the assets, Khachaturyants said. Sberbank took over the two fields as settlement for their former owner's $630 million debt.
