Blaring horns are a common sound on Russian roads, warning drivers of an impending crash if they don't act quickly.

But honking isn't often known to be the cause of an accident.

A dashcam video that has gone viral shows a driver who is perhaps being a little oversensitive to the honk of a horn. The video, uploaded last week and garnering nearly a quarter million views as of Monday, was filmed in Novoaltaisk, a town of 70,500 people in the Altai region.
