

Ignatiyev Nominated for Central Bank

By The Moscow Times

September 17, 2013

The  Moscow Times

Russia's new Central Bank head, Elvira Nabiullina has proposed that her predecessor, Sergei Ignatiyev, remain on the bank's board of directors, according to a list of candidates published by the Central Bank on Tuesday.

Ignatiyev's continuing tenure in a formal position at the bank would be seen as a sign of policy continuity. Nabiullina, who took over in June, previously said she would ask Ignatiyev to remain on as an adviser.

Ignatiyev, a veteran who headed the bank for 11 years, is credited with raising the status and effectiveness of the Central Bank, presiding over a fall in inflation and boosting confidence in the ruble.

New head Nabiullina, a former economic adviser to President Vladimir Putin, had been expected by some analysts to pursue a looser monetary policy to boost flagging economic growth at a time when the Central Bank has come under fire from some government officials for its tight money policy.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2013/09/17/ignatiyev-nominated-for-central-bank-a27759>