

Moscow Mayor Sobyenin Salary Rises Past Putin's

By The Moscow Times

May 11, 2014

The  Moscow Times

Moscow's Mayor Sergei Sobyenin earned 6,282,000 rubles ($179,310) during 2013, said an official report about his income published on the website of the Mayor and the City Hall on Thursday.

Sobyenin and his wife declared in the official report that they owned an apartment of 118 square meters in area and a garage of 27 square meters last year. The report said the Mayor does not possess any cars or land. However, his 16 year old daughter Olga Sobyenina has an apartment of 308 square meters in Moscow's city center.

Mayor's income increased by nearly a million rubles since 2012, when he declared he earned 5,321,000 rubles ($151,890). According to official income declarations, Sobyenin earned nearly twice as much as President Vladimir Putin, who received 3,672,208 rubles ($102,660) in 2013.

Prime-Minister Dmitry Medvedev also earned less money than Sobyenin, as he took home 4,259,525 rubles last year. However, both the President and Prime-Minister may become richer in 2014, as in April they have ordered nearly a threefold increase in their monthly salaries.

See related stories:

Sobyenin Daughter's Apartment Triggers Controversy

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/05/11/moscow-mayor-sobyenin-salary-rises-past-putins-a35308>