

Moscow Weather Center Predicts Storms and Rain

June 23, 2014

Moscow weather bureau predicts storms and rain.

Muscovites are in for another wet week in the capital with forecasters predicting showers, thunderstorms and gusty winds over the coming days.

According to the regional weather bureau, daytime temperatures in the city will not exceed 20 degrees Celsius this week, Interfax reported Monday.

Following an unseasonably warm May, forecasters said the current temperatures are close to the norm for June.

See also:

Moscow Gets Respite From Heat Wave

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/06/23/moscow-weather-center-predicts-storms-and-rain-a366>