

Mysterious Pillars of Light Cover St. Petersburg Night Sky

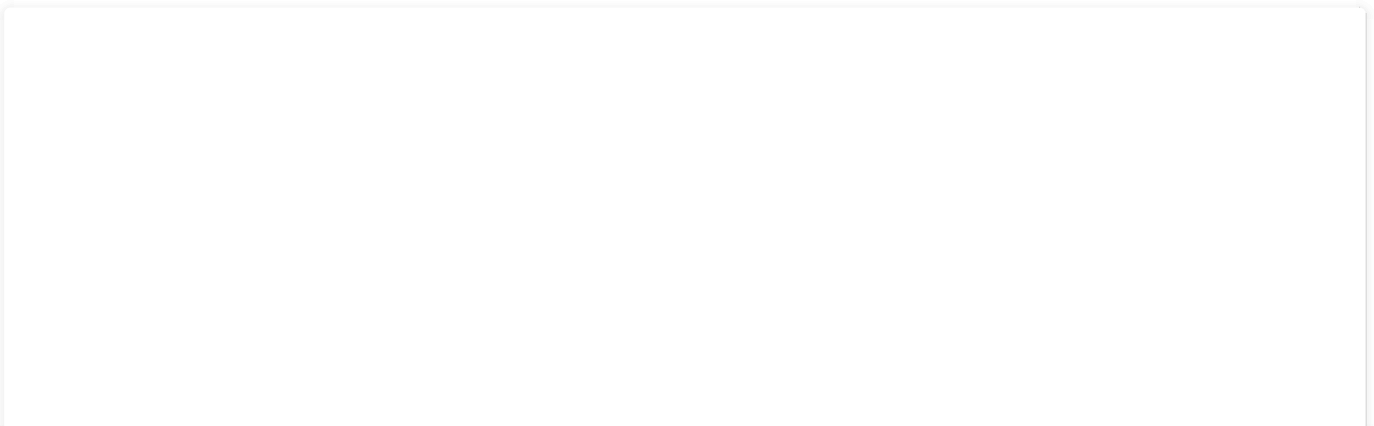

February 26, 2018

Darya Batanova / Instagram @daryabat

Residents of St. Petersburg were treated to stunning views of multicolored beams of light adorning the nighttime skies over the weekend.

Embed:

Публикация от Irina Sichova (@irina.sichova) Фев 23, 2018 в 5:44 PST

Locals took to social media to share photographs of the breathtaking phenomenon known as light pillars.

Embed:

Публикация от Darya Batanova (@daryabat) Фев 23, 2018 в 10:03 PST

Light pillars appear when sunlight, moonlight or streetlights are reflected on falling ice crystals.

Embed:

Публикация от Russian BMW E39 owner \(@nikolai.stepanof\) Фев 25, 2018 в 11:54 PST

The light hits the crystals and is reflected up or down in a mirror-like effect.

Embed:

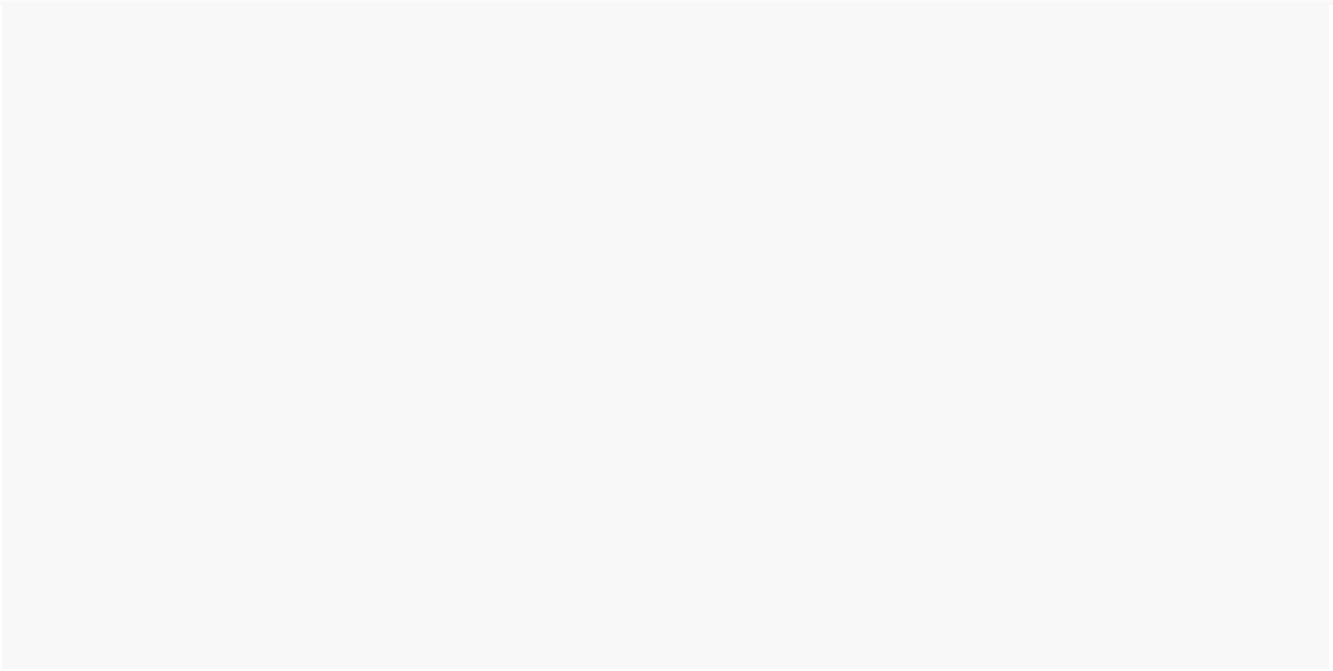

Публикация от vasilii (@vnsilin) Фев 24, 2018 в 2:47 PST

The phenomenon often occurs at sunset and sunrise.

Embed:

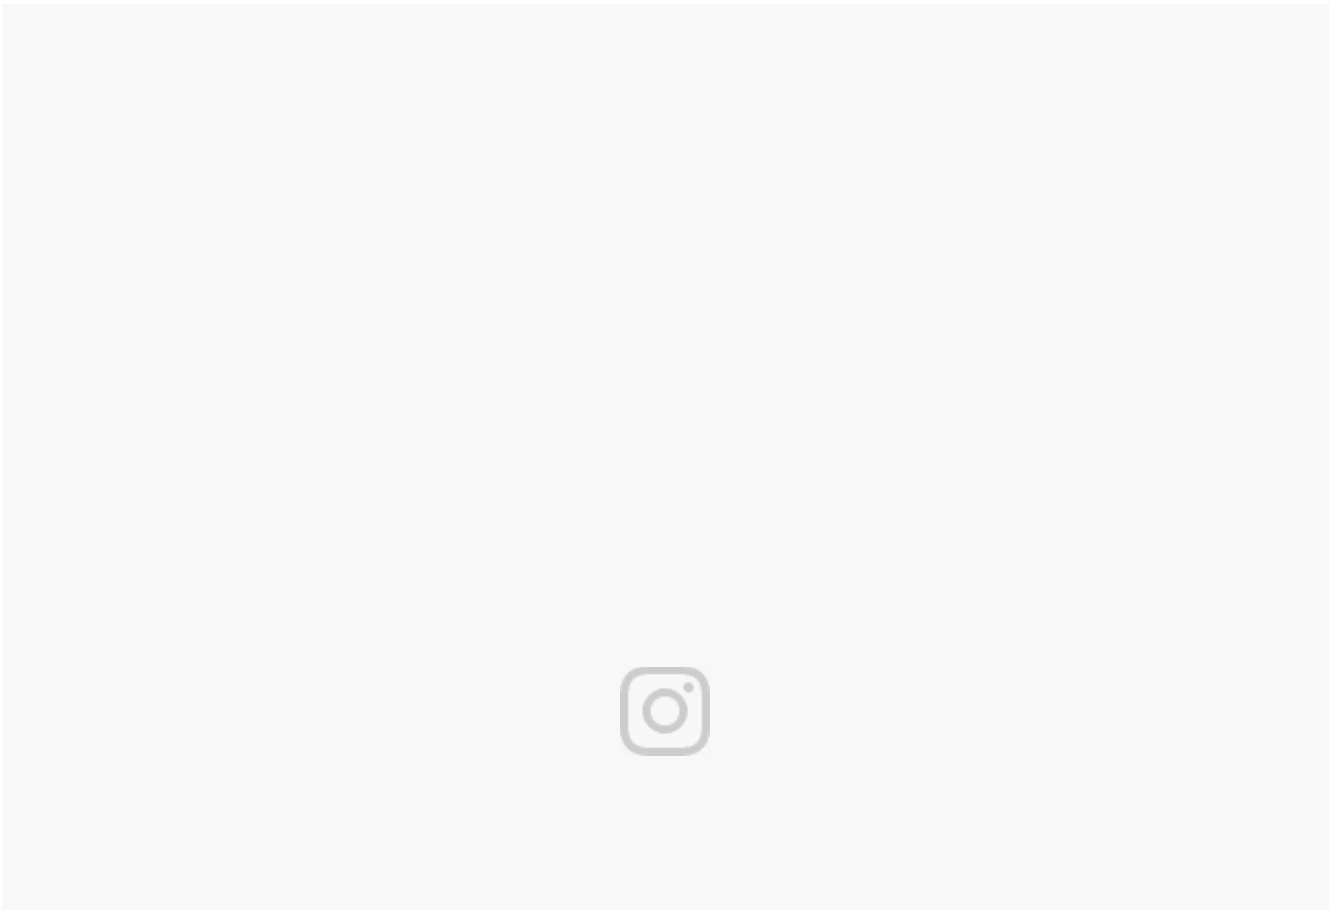

Публикация от void (@7dhw0) Фев 24, 2018 в 4:49 PST

The vertical bands of light are a rare sight.

Embed:

Публикация от @borozdin3 Фев 23, 2018 в 8:57 PST

People in St. Petersburg braved the cold to snap their best shots.

Embed:

Публикация от Twins' mommy. ИГ декретчицы. (@maslovskayastu) Фев 23, 2018 в 12:55 PST

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/02/26/mysterious-pillars-light-cover-st-petersburg-night-sky-a-60629>