

Here's How Russians Are Mourning the Kemerovo Mall Fire Victims Across the Country

March 27, 2018

Instagram @filipyev.leonid

Russia continues to mourn the victims of Sunday's shopping mall fire in Siberia in which at least 60 people died, according to official figures.

The fire reportedly swept through the upper floors of the Winter Cherry in the city of Kemerovo, where a cinema complex and children's play area were located, killing dozens of children and their families.

People across the country have posted photos of makeshift memorials with flowers and stuffed toys dedicated to the victims.

KEMEROVO

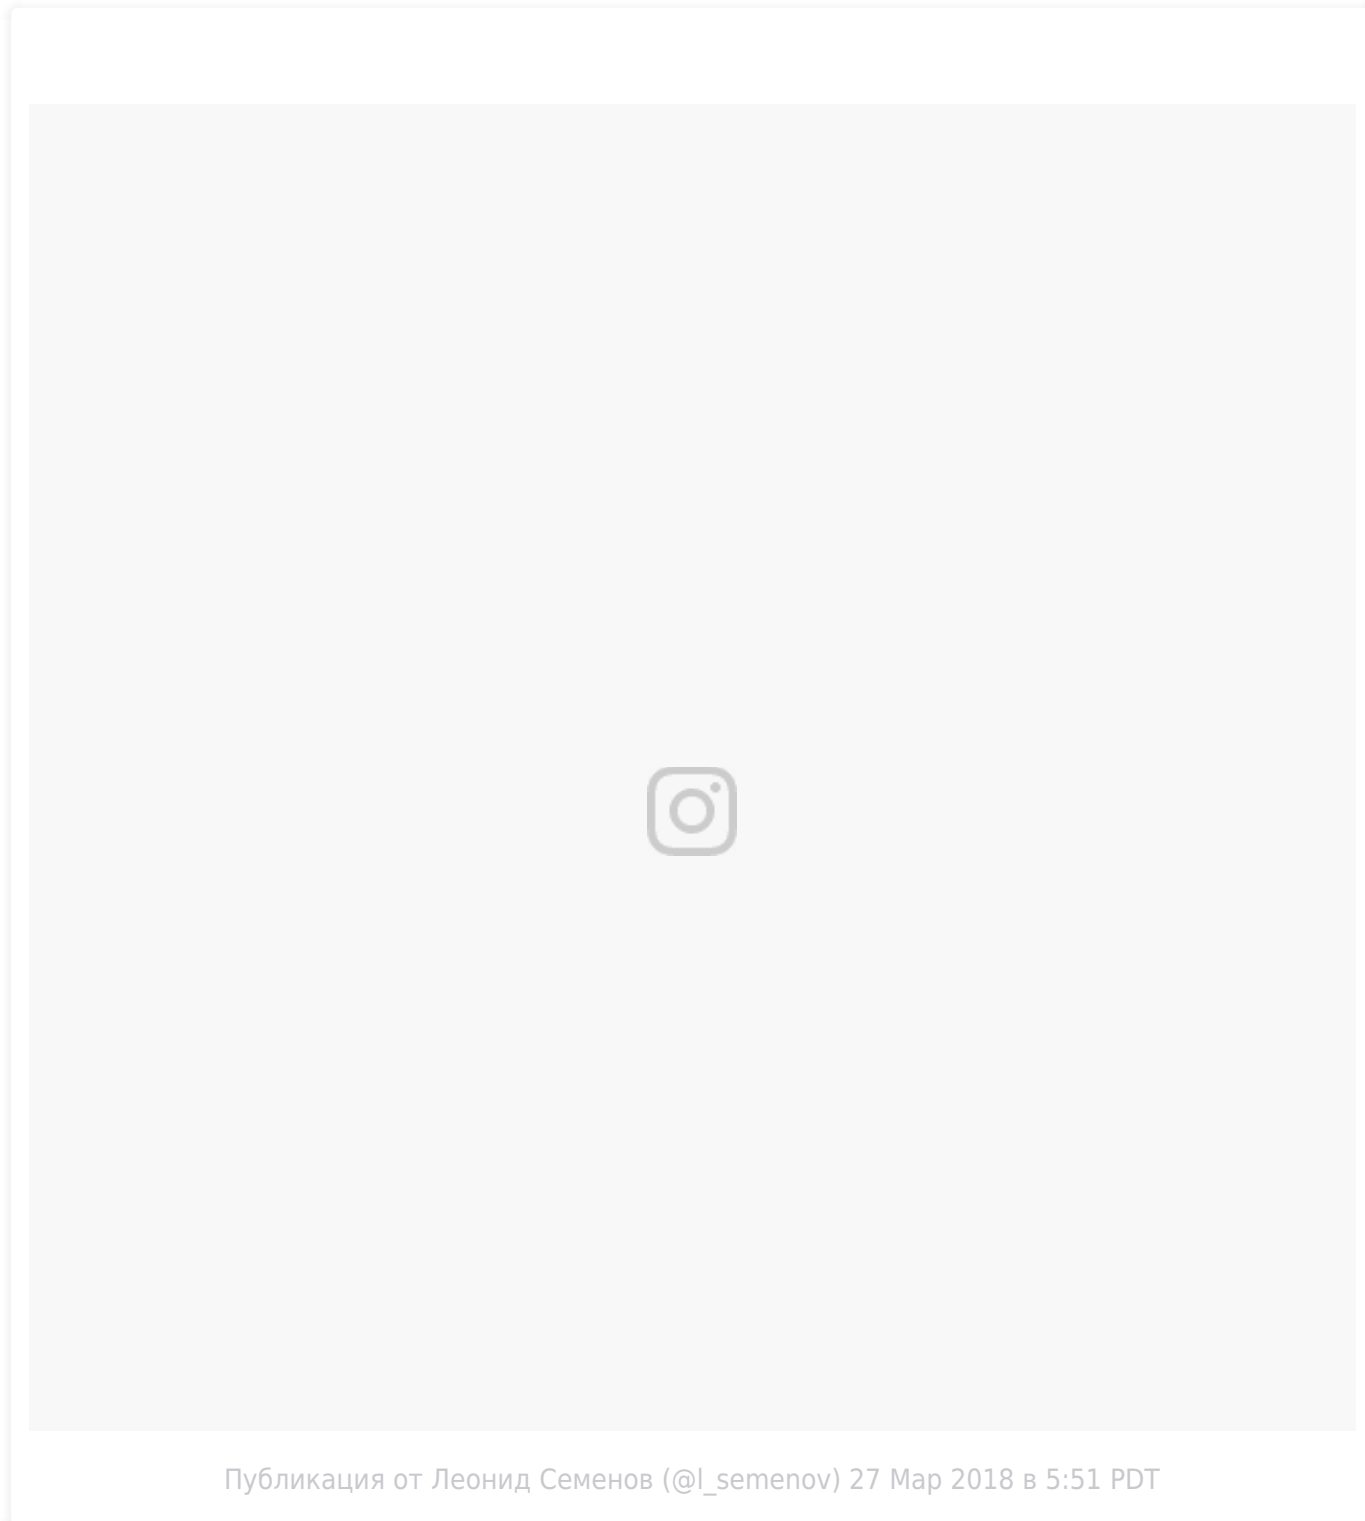

Embed:

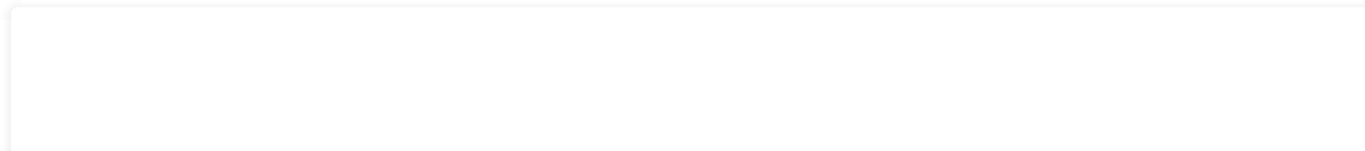

Публикация от Ходаковская Евгения (@khodakovskaiaev) 27 Мар 2018 в 5:32 PDT

NOVOSIBIRSK

Embed:

Embed:

Публикация от @ng.gn.m 27 Мар 2018 в 6:08 PDT

SOCHI

Embed:

Публикация от [Сочи - Наш Город] (@my.sochi_) 27 Мар 2018 в 12:57 PDT

ST. PETERSBURG

Embed:

Публикация от Anastasia Cherkasova (@ya_cherkasik) 27 Мар 2018 в 6:05 PDT

Embed:

Публикация от Васильева Марина (@_marina_8.02) 27 Мар 2018 в 1:18 PDT

YEKATERINBURG

Embed:

Публикация от Fyodor Krasheninnikov (@fyodorrrrr) 27 Мар 2018 в 3:13 PDT

Embed:

Публикация от @dmitrynichenko 26 Мар 2018 в 9:39 PDT

GELENDZHIK

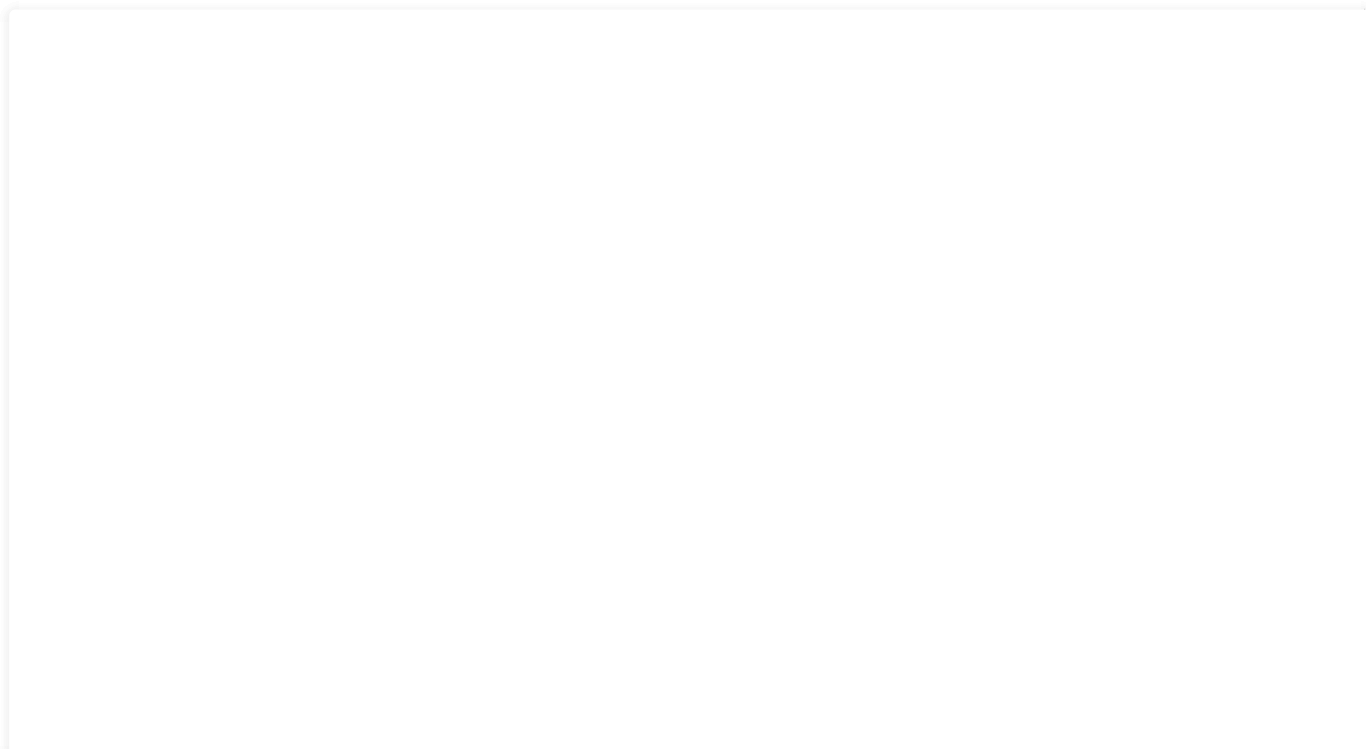

Embed:

Публикация от Леонид Филипьев (@filipyev.leonid) 27 Мар 2018 в 2:10 PDT

НАХОДКА

Embed:

Публикация от Находка [Большой Брат (@bigbro_nhk) 27 Мар 2018 в 2:21 PDT

An earlier version of this article stated that 64 people died in the fire, according to Russian authorities. The official death toll was later revised to 60, the Investigative Committee said in a statement.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/03/27/heres-how-russians-are-mourning-the-kemerovo-mall-fire-victims-across-country-a60960>