

Russians Grow 'Mustaches of Hope' in Last Ditch Attempt to Save World Cup Chances

June 07, 2018

With just seven days to go until Russia's first game in the FIFA World Cup, fans across the country have little left to bank on other than hope.

The national team has failed to win in seven consecutive games since November 2017 and will be the lowest ranked team in the tournament that it hosts this summer.

Desperation rising, Russia's popular late-night television host Ivan Urgant launched a tongue-in-cheek campaign in support of the team's beleaguered head coach Stanislav Cherchesov.

"Everything is against him now: Expectations, the weather, the laws of physics, the anatomy of certain footballers and just plain-old logic!" Urgant said during an episode of his show on Tuesday.

To support the mustached coach, Urgant called on social media users to grow “mustaches of hope” to share on social media.
