

'Intoxicated' Shooter Detained in Russian Church After Boar Hunt, Local Media Report

December 10, 2018

Pixabay

A suspect has been detained at a church in Russia's Mordovia region, Interfax reported Monday, citing a law enforcement source.

Local media reported that the man had broken into the church on Sunday night with a rifle after following boar tracks during a hunt. He was reportedly intoxicated and began shooting for an unidentified reason, after which local residents called the police.

While being detained, the suspect stabbed a policeman with a pointed church relic, Interfax reported. The officer was hospitalized in stable condition and a criminal case is being opened into the incident, Interfax said.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/12/10/intoxicated-shooter-detained-russian-church-after-boar>

-hunt-local-media-report-a63770